

We have the guns for a new kind of war. A war on hatred and injustice.
They are the simple, infectious pleasure of breaking rules.
The loneliness shared by prom queens
and executives on long business trips alike, both ready to abdicate their roles the someone offers them a world populated by people instant rather than chess pieces.